In this workshop leaders from the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) will discuss the implications of our research findings in the world of innovation as well as highlight the innovative science outreach programs supported by the USPTO.

Tanaga Boozer: As Program Advisor in the Office of Education and Outreach, she directs and coordinates intellectual property (IP) educational outreach programs and partnerships with external organizations, academic institutions and federal agencies.

Michael Razavi: Currently he is Outreach Educator and Advisor to the Office of Innovation Development. Within the USPTO, he has worked closely with the Offices of the Under Secretary, Policy and International Affairs, and the Commissioner for Patents. In addition, he serves as the President of the Supervisory Patent Examiner-Classifiers Organization, representing 600-plus managers at the USPTO.
